WALLS THAT KNEW US

In halls where whispers share the night, and laughter flickers dim dorm light, we found a world away from home, yet never once did we feel alone.

The creak of bunks, the shared old tales, the stolen snacks, the midnight fails, from early bells to tired yawns, we stitched our hearts in Twilight dawns.

Uniform wrinkled, ties askew but loyalty stitched in every crew, a fight, a hug then back again – what's friendship if not sun and rain?

*Canteen chaos, rules we bent, secrets sworn, and money spent,
we grew in silence, laughs and noise, young hearts chasing louder joys.*
